

PENNY ANDERSON

Penny Anderson serves as a performance and technology director with the Government of Saskatchewan, where she leverages her scientific training and policy expertise to advance organizational performance and innovation. With a background in biology and a career spanning public policy, communications, data governance, enterprise risk, and intergovernmental relations, Penny is known for her ability to integrate evidence, strategy, and operational insight.

Her leadership style is grounded in collaboration, transparency, and interest-based problem-solving. Penny is a long-standing member of the Regina Community Clinic and is committed to advancing equity and improving community health outcomes. She has contributed to the nonprofit sector as a director and treasurer for the Rainbow Youth Centre and through volunteer work with various community organizations. She has been a member of the Clinic's Board of Directors since 2022 and is dedicated to supporting its continued growth and service to the community.